Minnesota Public Radio and the Minneapolis Urban League are collaborating on a three-part series, "The Economy and You." The public is invited to attend each installment of the series, where Chief Economics Correspondent Chris Farrell will answer questions about personal finance, the business climate and the economy. MPR's Jeff Horwich and Insight News's Al McFarlane will be the moderators for the series.

The three conversations will take place in different locations in the Twin Cities community. The series will be recorded for potential future broadcast.
