Author, educator and veteran Democratic political strategist Donna Brazile will discuss her mission to integrate social and intellectual consciousness into daily life in a talk from 6:30 to 8:15 p.m. Monday, Sept. 21, in the auditorium of O'Shaughnessy Educational Center on the St. Paul campus of the University of St. Thomas.

Her address is the first of several fall semester lectures and programs that comprise the CommUNITY Series at St. Thomas this year. The series, which has "Building a Socially and Intellectually Conscious Community" as its theme, is an expanded version of the CommUNITY Week programs held in recent years.

A reception will be held from 5:30 to 6:15 p.m., prior to Brazile's lecture, in the foyer of O'Shaughnessy Educational Center. Both the reception and lecture are free and open to the public, but tickets are required. Tickets can be picked up at St. Thomas' Box Office located on the lower level of Murray-Herrick Campus Center. The public can request tickets by sending an e-mail to boxoffice@stthomas.edu.

The CommUNITY Series is organized by St. Thomas' Office of Institutional Diversity. Brazile's talk is sponsored by that office and the university's Luann Dummer Center for Women.

Brazile will discuss how embracing tolerance and diversity has helped her to build respect in difference environments including the academic, social and political arenas.

Brazile is the first African American to direct a major presidential campaign. She began her political career at the age of 9 when she worked to support the campaign of a city council candidate who promised to build a playground in her neighborhood. Over the past four decades she has served on many local, state and national campaigns, and in 2000 managed Al Gore's campaign for president.

Brazile is an adjunct professor at Georgetown University and author of the best-selling autobiography, Cooking With Grease: Stirring the Pots in American Politics. In the media, she is a political contributor on CNN, consultant to ABC News, commentator on ABC's "This Week With George Stephanopoulos" and frequent contributor to NPR's "News and Notes." In print and online she is a columnist for Roll Call and Ms magazine.

Washingtonian named Brazile one of the "100-most-powerful women" and Essence named her one of the top-50 women in America. Her passion, she says, is encouraging young people to vote, work within the system to strengthen it, and run for public office.

Former Louisiana Gov. Kathleen Blanco appointed Brazile, a New Orleans native, to the board of directors of the Louisiana Recovery Authority, the agency charged with leading the state's rebuilding process in the aftermath of two hurricanes.

Brazile is founder and managing director of Brazile & Associates LLC, a general consulting, grassroots advocacy, and training firm based in Washington, D.C.
