

DAVID NOBLE LECTURE SERIES: “Detroit: Then and Now”

Written by
Friday, 29 March 2013 12:00

Tuesday, April 9, 6 p.m.

Weisman Art Museum, 333 East River Road, Mpls.

The 19th annual David Noble Lecture, presented by the U of M American Studies Department, features Tiya Miles, professor at the University of Michigan and recipient of a MacArthur Fellowship “genius grant.” Through a reconstruction of early Detroit in the first American decades with a focus on the role of slavery, this presentation considers whether understanding Detroit then can help to shape visionary thinking and action for Detroit now. The event is part of the “Black Studies and American Studies at the Crossroads Lecture Series” and is co-sponsored by the Weisman Art Museum.

Visit www.thefriends.org or call 651-222-3242 for more information.