

Standing at Mandela's prison window

Written by Tene Wells, Social Entrepreneur
Thursday, 22 August 2013 20:51

Social entrepreneur Tene Wells: Telling the universe our desires

Last month, I traveled to South Africa to look out a window.

After a series of challenges in 2009, when I was fired, I questioned the trappings of my past successes and corporate security and decided it was time for me to do my: soul work. I applied and received a Bush Fellowship. As I envisioned my new life I decided that one of my learning objectives would include a trip to South Africa to witness the sparks of a new economy. However, the bigger objective was to look out the window of Nelson Mandela's jail cell.

Standing at Mandela's prison window

Written by Tene Wells, Social Entrepreneur
Thursday, 22 August 2013 20:51

om.

tenewells@gmail.com